Foreword

The Directory of Sabbath-Observing Groups is a guidebook for Christians who may wish to know, or need to know, the landscape of the Sabbatarian community of faith in the United States and Canada.

When they meet one of us who “keep Saturday,” many people will say, “You are a Seventh-day Adventist, then.” Odds are they will be correct: The SDA church is the largest of the Sabbatarian organizations, consisting of many millions of members around the world.

However, the Seventh-day Adventist Church is not the only group of Christians who regard the seventh day of each week — not the first — as the Bible’s original and continuing rest day. There are many more such groups, several of which represent numerous congregations and are thus regarded as denominations. Beyond these, hundreds or thousands of local groups and house churches choose no affiliation with denominations, but congregationally practice their faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and their loyalty to the weekly Sabbath as the Lord’s day.

The purpose of this directory is to provide the reader with a positive, even-handed introduction to this broad and diverse community — Seventh-day Adventists and all the rest of us who “remember the Sabbath day” as a memorial of creation and of salvation as recorded in sacred Scripture. This is not the first edition of such a publication but rather the eleventh in the past seventy years.

Publisher turns seventy

All these directories come from the efforts of the Bible Sabbath Association (BSA), a non-denominational cooperative of men and women from various Sabbath-observing groups found in this directory. Because 2015 marks seventy years of existence for the BSA, we have chosen to make this eleventh edition of the directory a tribute to the mid-twentieth century founders and early pioneers of the BSA (see p. 87). In this regard, this directory differs from the ten previous editions.

Another new feature of this directory is the organization of all Sabbath-observing groups into seven classifications, which appear in roughly chronological order, beginning with Chapter 1. Since Seventh Day Baptists are the oldest Sabbatarian church in America, they appear first in the Table of Contents, followed by Seventh-day Adventists, Church of God (Seventh Day), then (former) World-wide Church of God, Sacred Names, Messianic/Hebraic, and unaffiliated groups. Each of these seven segments begins with a helpful two-to-four page review and summary of the history and current status of that movement (or of a primary representative of the movement).

Historically, each of these seven expressions of Sabbatarian Christian faith has usually chosen to operate in relative isolation from the others. However, the hope and prayer of the BSA is that this directory may serve to reduce the walls that separate us and open the windows of communication and cooperation that can lead to increased understanding and mutual respect — qualities that will benefit us all.

President's personal word

I was raised in a BSA home and family by parents who served forty years as secretary-treasurer for this association of Sabbath-observing Christians. Guests from a variety of Sabbath persuasions often came to visit the BSA's home office at our Oklahoma farmhouse — many for an hour, some for overnight, and a few for a week or more.

Along with other farm and household chores, my siblings and I grew accustomed to tasks that came with having the BSA office in the same house we called home. We assisted Mother and Dad in typing stenciled letters for bulk mailings; folding the mimeographed copies; stamping, stuffing, and sorting envelopes; typing sunset charts; and other menial tasks now long forgotten. The names of other BSA officers and members around the US and Canada became household names for us.

Looking back on those years, I'm grateful for lessons learned through BSA. Yes, I picked up a few rudimentary office skills along the way, and my commitment to the seventh-day Sabbath grew stronger.

Equally important to me now is the fact that this early exposure to Christ-followers outside our own church took me a long way down the road to recognize and appreciate the non-denominational character of our God. I never felt the need to switch to another church, but that early experience of seeing God's Spirit in men and women of many denominations — or of no denomination — put me on track to reject the isolation and exclusivism that so easily be-sets church groups of all stripes and persuasions.

Fellow Sabbathkeepers, let us gladly affirm and celebrate that we are one in Christ (Messiah). By so affirming and celebrating, we become the answer to His prayer in John 17:20–23. In some small way, I'm confident that this directory can serve even to advance the cause of unity for which Jesus so fervently prayed.

*Calvin Burrell, President
Bible Sabbath Association*

Caveats and disclaimers

- Not every Sabbath-observing organization or congregation in this directory is right for every person. You should read the information herein primarily for information, not using it as an endorsement of everything taught and practiced by every group.
- Not every Sabbathkeeping organization and congregation in the United States and Canada is listed in this directory. Others might well have been listed, but their existence and/or data was unavailable to us.
- Not every piece of information in this directory will be accurate by the time this book is in your hands. Church groups and the data that describe them change often. You may find updated information in our online directory available soon at www.biblesabbath.org.

A Summary Sketch of Seventh Day Baptists

1650 - Present

From the SDB Historical Society

Seventh Day Baptists are a covenant people based on the concepts of regenerate membership, believer's baptism, congregational polity, and scriptural basis for belief and practice. Seventh Day Baptists have presented the Sabbath as a sign of obedience in a covenant relationship with God and not as a condition of salvation. They have not condemned those who do not accept the Sabbath, but are curious at the apparent inconsistency of those who claim to accept the Bible as their source of faith and practice, yet have followed church traditions instead.

Seventh Day Baptists date their origin with the mid-seventeenth century Separatist movement in England. With the renewed emphasis on the Scriptures for doctrine and practice, men such as James Ockford, William Saller, Peter Chamberlain, Francis Bampfield, and Edward and Joseph Stennett concluded that keeping the seventh-day Sabbath was an inescapable element of biblical Christianity. Some maintained membership within the Baptist fellowship and simply added the private Sabbath observance to their other shared convictions. As state power enforced conformity to a common day of worship, separation became necessary. The first separate church of record was the Mill Yard church, founded in London about 1650.

The study of the Scriptures in America brought Samuel and Tacy Hubbard to the Baptist principle of believer's baptism in 1647 and membership in the First Baptist Church of Newport, Rhode Island. Beginning in 1665, their family and several others became convinced of the seventh-day Sabbath and joined in fellowship with Stephen Mumford and his wife, who had held Sabbath convictions while members of a Baptist church in Tewkesbury, England. When two couples gave up their Sabbath convictions, the others found it difficult to share communion with them within First Baptist. Thus five members joined with the Mumfords in a covenant relationship, establishing the first Seventh Day Baptist Church in America in December 1671. Even after this separation, close fellowship with other Baptists remained.

A similar separation occurred in 1705 in Piscataway, New Jersey, when a deacon of the Baptist Church, Edmund Dunham, became convinced of the biblical basis for Sabbath observance. Dunham and sixteen others withdrew to form their own church. A third group of churches came out of the Keithian split from Quakerism in the Philadelphia area about 1700. A pietistic movement among German immigrants was influenced by this third group. This led to the formation of a sister conference known as German Seventh Day Baptists, which founded the cloisters of Ephrata, Pennsylvania, about 1728. From these beginnings, Seventh Day Baptists followed the westward migration, arriving on the Pacific Coast by 1900.

Seventh Day Baptists have been characterized by their participation in missionary activity, educational endeavors, and ecumenicity and civic responsibility. The missionary spirit led to the formation of a General Conference in 1802. In preserving the autonomy of the local church, the Conference has relied upon societies for implementing a range of missions, publications, and education. Beginning in 1821, the denomination has had an almost continuous publication, with the current house organ, The Sabbath Recorder, published unbroken since 1844.

Several early missionary societies encouraged pastors to make extended journeys on the home field. The current Missionary Society was formed in 1843, and four years later missionaries began an effective mission in China, embracing both medical and educational phases until the Communist takeover in 1950. Most of the foreign missions of the twentieth century have been in response to the “Macedonian call” that responded to Sabbathkeeping groups crying out, “Come over and help us.” This led to missions worldwide in such places as Jamaica and Guyana in the Caribbean region; Malawi and Ghana in Africa; India, Burma (Myanmar), and the Philippines in Asia; Australia and New Zealand in Oceania; and scattered responses in other areas. In 1965 a World Federation of Seventh Day Baptist Conferences was formed, which has included more than twenty member conferences.

Seventh Day Baptists’ insistence on an enlightened conscience for beliefs and practices led to the formation of an Education Society and the establishment of schools or academies as they migrated into the frontiers. These schools were never limited to members of the denomination but served the areas where public education had not become readily available. Three of these schools later became colleges at Alfred, New York; Milton, Wisconsin; and Salem, West Virginia. The desire for an educated clergy led to the establishment of a seminary at Alfred University in 1871. These schools were among the pioneers in women’s education at the college and seminary level. What the academies and colleges did for higher education was duplicated for both children and adults in the local church through the Sabbath Schools and material prepared for them. Though these institutions of higher education met with difficulty in the mid-twentieth century and gradually either closed or sacrificed their affiliation, the educational impulse remains genetic to Seventh Day Baptists.

The sense of ecumenicity present in the earliest churches was continued as Seventh Day Baptists were charter members of such organizations as the Federal, National, and World Councils of Churches. The denomination withdrew from these ties in the 1970s, when the direction of these bodies appeared to violate the autonomy of the local church and other principles of Baptist thought and practice. The withdrawal strengthened their relationship with other Baptists in such organizations as the Baptist World Alliance, the North American Baptist Fellowship, the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs, and related kindred groups involving women and societal interests.

Throughout their history, Seventh Day Baptists have had a strong sense of civic responsibility. Several leaders of the first churches in England held responsible positions in the government. In America both Richard and Samuel Ward were governors of Rhode Island in the eighteenth century, the latter serving in the Continental Congress in 1775-1776. Others served in government at various levels, including Congress where Senator Jennings Randolph of West Virginia represented his state for forty years in either the House or the Senate beginning in 1933. Many have served in the armed forces, including chaplains in the Revolutionary War, the Civil War, World War II, and the "War on Terror." The SDB General Conference has taken strong stands on social issues such as temperance, human life, and sexual immorality and has urged its members to embody those principles and practices that make for a more Christian society.

Due to an emphasis on freedom of thought and conscience, Seventh Day Baptists have represented a wide diversity of theological thought. Their common bond of the Sabbath enabled them to avoid a split during the fundamentalist-modernist controversy of the 1920s. In fact, the Seventh Day Baptist General Conference of the US and Canada has never split over a doctrinal issue. For most of that history, the denomination has been rural-oriented but has found in more recent years its greatest growth in developing urban ministries, with significant efforts over the last forty years yielding new works in urban areas. Contemporary efforts to plant new churches reflect the Conference's continued devotion to sharing the gospel of Jesus Christ.

The Seventh Day Baptist General Conference of the US and Canada is organized as an association of churches. Voting on most issues brought before the annual sessions is done by delegates from member churches. In addition, the annual sessions serve as a time of program evaluation, vision casting, fellowship, and worship. A five-member General Council is empowered to act for the Conference between sessions and prepare budget and program emphases.

In the late twentieth and early twenty-first centuries, Seventh Day Baptists have faced the increased secularization and individualization of society, especially in the global West, but globalism has strengthened the movement overall through broadening perspectives and providing necessary counterbalancing voices. Increasingly, Seventh Day Baptists are a multi-cultural and multi-ethnic people, representing a broader cross section of "the nations." Though challenges still remain for their work around the world, Seventh Day Baptists remain committed to God and the guiding of the Holy Spirit at work in their consciences as they strive to live out the mandate of the Great Commission to teach, baptize, and witness throughout the entire world.

The General Conference offices for the US and Canada are located at 3120 Kennedy Road in Janesville, Wisconsin. The website is www.seventhdaybaptist.org. Seventh Day Baptists can also be found on many of the social media platforms, including Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube.

Unique Doctrines: Our local churches are organized as a covenant people, with regenerate members joined together in believer's baptism, a congregational polity, and lives guided by God's Word. "Seventh Day Baptists consider liberty of thought under the guidance of the Holy Spirit to be essential to Christian belief and practice. Therefore we encourage the unhindered study and open discussion of Scripture. We uphold the individual's freedom of conscience in seeking to determine and obey the will of God" (from our Statement of Belief). We can agree to discuss and have differing views on non-salvation matters.

Seventh-day Adventist Church

by David Guerrero

Organized in 1863, the Seventh-day Adventist Church has its doctrinal roots in the Advent Awakening movement of the 1840s. Hundreds of thousands of Christians became convinced from their study of Bible prophecy that Christ would soon return. This reawakening of a neglected biblical belief occurred in many countries, with a major focus in North America.

After the Great Disappointment of their hopes in 1844, these Advent believers broke up into several different groups. One group, studying their Bibles for increased understanding, recognized the seventh-day Sabbath (Saturday) as the correct day of worship. This group, which included James and Ellen White and Joseph Bates, became the nucleus of the church congregations that chose the name Seventh-day Adventist Church and organized in Battle Creek, Michigan, with one hundred twenty-five churches and thirty-five hundred members.

These Adventists began to grow mainly in the New England states of America, where William Miller's Advent movement had begun. Ellen G. White, a mere teenager at the time of the Great Disappointment, became a gifted author, speaker, administrator, and the trusted spiritual counselor of the Adventist family for more than seventy years until her death in 1915. Her counsels and messages to believers and church leaders shaped the form and progress of the church, while its beliefs remained Bible based.

The Health Reform Institute, later known as Battle Creek Sanitarium, opened its doors in 1866, and missionary society work was organized in 1870. The first of the church's worldwide network of schools was established in 1872, and 1877 saw the formation of statewide Sabbath School associations. In 1903 the denominational headquarters were moved from Battle Creek, Michigan, to Washington, D.C., and then to Silver Spring, Maryland, in 1989, where it forms the nerve center of an ever-expanding work worldwide.

Other early Adventists of note include John Harvey Kellogg, inventor of the cornflake and pioneer of the Battle Creek Sanitarium; Joseph Bates, retired sea captain and first leader of an Adventist administration; Uriah Smith, prolific author, inventor, and editor of the church's paper for almost fifty years.

Adventist missionaries began work outside North America in 1864, and ten years later J. N. Andrews was sent to Switzerland as the denomination's first official missionary. In 1894 church operations commenced in Africa (Ghana and South Africa). Missionaries also arrived in South America in 1894 and in Japan in 1896. The church now operates in 205 countries.

The publication and distribution of literature were major factors in the growth of the Advent movement. The Advent Review and Sabbath Herald (now the Adventist Review), general church paper, was launched in Paris, Maine, in 1850; the Youth's Instructor in Rochester, New York, in 1852; and the Signs of the Times in Oakland, California, in 1874. The first denominational publishing house at Battle Creek, Michigan, began operating in 1855 and was duly incorporated in 1861 under the name of Seventh-day Adventist Publishing Association.

Adventists have a desire to reach people for Christ. One result of this desire is that Adventists have built thousands of schools around the world, and SDA physicians and medical institutions serve individual needs in more than ninety-eight countries, giving the highest quality of personal care whenever people hurt. Using modern medical knowledge and carefully developed skills, these workers touch thousands of lives each day, bringing healing and hope into families around the world.

Schools, hospitals, clinics, and health food factories are just one small corner of the Seventh-day Adventist commitment to improving lives. There is much more:

1. Wherever disaster strikes, the Adventist Development and Relief Agency joins hands with other organizations to provide clean water, food, clothing, housing, and care.
2. Adventist publishing houses produce inspirational books, textbooks, Bible commentaries, health books, and dozens of specialized magazines in scores of languages each month. These are then delivered to millions of homes around the world, providing quality reading and information that improves lives.
3. Local Adventist churches serve their communities by providing recreational and social activities for children and teenagers, vocational and evening education programs for adults, and spiritual programming and health clinics for all.
4. On a worldwide scale, the church's mission activities are exemplified in the Global Mission Initiative to reach the unreached peoples of the world for Christ.
5. Summer camps offer all sorts of activities, from horseback riding and water skiing to crafts and dozens of other youth activities in rural environments where children feel safe and loved.

These activities are combined with a witness for God's message to make people whole physically, mentally, socially, and spiritually.

6. Use of modern technology also describes Adventist commitment to mission and presence in society with messages of "Good News." Numerous radio and TV studios and other media programs dot the Adventist broadcasting map around the globe. The church's interest is best exemplified in a satellite broadcast system with more than fourteen thousand downlink sites, and the television 24/7 global broadcasting network, the Hope Channel.

The Seventh-day Adventist Church is far more than its organizational structure and institutions. It is people, individual members who have caught a vision and have chosen to live out that vision for Christ as His hands of hope.

Growth from the early days has been dramatic. From the small group meeting in 1846 and the organization of the church with thirty-five hundred believers in 1863, Seventh-day Adventists now number approximately seventeen million worldwide.

Church of God (Seventh Day)

by Calvin Burrell

The Church of God (Seventh Day) movement grew from the efforts of dedicated followers of Christ in southwestern Michigan in the late 1850s. They believed in the soon coming of Christ, the observance of the seventh-day Sabbath, and the authority of the Bible alone for Christian faith and practice. They called themselves “churches of Christ” at the start.

Joined by a Marion, Iowa church of similar persuasion (1862), the Michigan church extended its influence into the eastern and central United States through publication of The Hope of Israel, thus creating interest in the Church’s distinctive doctrines. The fledgling Church organized a General Conference in Michigan (1884) and incorporated in the state of Missouri (1899). In 1950 its central offices were moved from Stanberry, Missouri, to Denver, Colorado.

Perhaps the most recognizable ministry of CoG7 (as the Church is often called) is its flagship paper, the Bible Advocate (BA). On August 10, 2013, the BA magazine, which began as The Hope of Israel back in 1863, celebrated its one hundred fiftieth anniversary of publication.

Leading personalities

- Gilbert Cranmer (1814–1903). The founding of the Church in Michigan was the work of nineteenth century preacher Gilbert Cranmer. As a Millerite Adventist, Cranmer went through the Great Disappointment of 1844, learned the Sabbath from Joseph Bates in 1853, and worked with James and Ellen White until their differences led him to set out with “the Bible and the Bible alone” in 1858. Cranmer’s primary point of contention with the Whites (not yet organized as the Seventh-day Adventist Church) was over the inspiration of Ellen G. White’s visions and their role in the developing work.
- Andrew Dugger (1886–1975). The most prominent churchman in the early twentieth century was Elder A. N. Dugger. As editor, writer, debater, evangelist, and Conference president, he instituted positive reforms in Church finance and called for unity in support of his version of the Church’s doctrines. Ironically, the man who did much to unite the Church also led a schism that lasted sixteen years (1933–49). Elder Dugger spent his later years (1953–75) in Israel, where he had long dreamed of establishing world headquarters for a restored New Testament church.
- Robert Coulter (b. 1930) served the Church as chairman of its General Conference for twenty-four years (1963–87). Many of its organizational structures and operating policies were developed or modernized under his leadership. As a CoG7 missions pioneer, he was the architect and first president of the Church’s International Ministerial Congress, which loosely organized CoG7’s sister conferences around the world. In retirement, Elder Coulter has become the Church’s primary historian. His five hundred-page book, The Journey: A History of the Church of God (Seventh Day), rolled off the presses in early 2014.
- Current General Conference president, Elder Whaid Rose, has served that position since 1997. Rose’s 2011 booklet Dream in Progress describes his vision of a vibrant twenty-first century church as “Christ-centered; Distinct, not Exclusive; Sabbath-observing; Bible-based; Spirit-formed; Passionate in Worship; Compassionate in Service; Aggressive in Witness; Warm in Fellowship; and Committed to Discipleship.” Pastor Loren Stacy of Lodi, California, has served as chairman of CoG7's Conference board also since 1997.

Size and service

The Church's General Conference, whose offices near Denver, Colorado, were built and occupied in 1972, represents two hundred twenty congregations and approximately ten thousand members in the United States and Canada. CoG7 branches in Meridian, Idaho, and Salem, West Virginia, along with independent congregations, add to the numbers of the broader movement, most of which goes by some form of the Church of God (Seventh Day) name.

The Church's foreign affiliates have increased significantly in the past century, due largely to the distribution of literature and the BA magazine. The International Ministerial Congress of the Church, organized in 1978, now serves conferences or mission churches in about forty countries. World membership in the Church is estimated at nearly two hundred thousand.

Missions Abroad is the arm of the Church that leads its efforts to birth new work around the world and to support its many missions. Through G. C. Missions, the Church supports more than ninety indigenous missionaries and more than three hundred orphans in fifteen countries. It maintains a Disaster Relief Fund that sends tens of thousands of dollars each year to sites where the Church is impacted by drought, flood, earthquake, and other catastrophes. Each year a Church-sponsored team of fifty or more medical and dental personnel travel to a nation in Central or South America, or the Caribbean, for a week of service to needy people. The 2014 mission to Belize was the eleventh annual SHINE (Serving Him in Nations Everywhere) trip.

Publications and more

The longest-term service provided by the Church is its printed literature. When the Marion, Iowa church became aware of Gilbert Cranmer's congregations in Michigan, these two states, with support from scattered Sabbathkeepers in Wisconsin and points east, began to cooperate (1863) in publishing a paper that expressed their common beliefs. First known as The Hope of Israel, that paper is still published now as the Bible Advocate. Supported by the Church and freewill offerings, it is sent bimonthly without subscription charge.

Spring Vale Academy, a boarding school near Owosso, Michigan, was founded by CoG7 leaders in 1948, with more than twelve hundred high school graduates over sixty-five years of existence (springvale.us).

Ministerial training has been a feature of the Church's ministries for more than sixty years. It began in Stanberry, Missouri, under the name Midwest Bible College. Moving to Denver, Colorado, in 1976, the school operated twenty-five years as Summit School of Theology and now as LifeSpring School of Ministry, offering coursework by distance learning and by the latest simulcast technology (lifespringschool.org).

The General Conference also provides programmed fellowship and ministry opportunities for the Church's youth, young adults, and women.

Teaching and theology

The Church's theological flavor is biblically conservative, evangelical (gospel centered), and grace based (mostly Arminian). Its polity is a blend of elders rule with congregationalism. Its eschatology is historic premillennial and non-dispensational. It opposes the popular, traditional ideas of heaven (natural immortality of soul) and hell (as eternal torment) in favor of Christ's return, resurrection of the righteous dead to immortality (as the gift of God through Christ) and of the wicked to destruction (annihilation), and the eternal kingdom of God on a restored earth.

The Church's official doctrine, embodied in a twelve-point Statement of Faith, is entrusted to the care and cultivation of its Ministerial Council, now about one hundred fifty ministers and pastors (in the US and Canada). The Statement of Faith is subject to amendment as the group grows in grace and knowledge of Christ and the written Word. The statement may be read at cog7.org. It is fully developed and defended in a 2012 book entitled This We Believe: Teachings of the Church of God (Seventh Day), available at Bible Advocate Press, P.O. Box 33677, Denver, CO 80233.

This author has attended CoG7 for seventy-one years, and served it for fifty. I have watched the Church evolve from a rather closed sect focused mostly on its own version of truth to a gospel-centered fellowship of folks who still embrace the moral law of God, the weekly seventh-day Sabbath, and the truths of conditional immortality — now in the prevailing context of God's grace in Jesus Christ.

We've changed slowly over the years, and we're still growing as we come to an ever-clearer understanding of Jesus Christ and the new covenant gospel. Our changes come, not by revolution imposed by a top-heavy structure but from members and ministers who treasure the concept of an "open creed" — one that is subject to reasoned, studied adjustment under the authority of "the Bible and the Bible alone."

Unique Doctrines: We are gospel-centered, grace-based, and Christ-centered. We teach 1) the deity of Christ, but not the orthodox Trinitarian creeds; 2) salvation only by grace through faith in Christ, but not the doctrine of eternal security; 3) the weekly seventh-day Sabbath, but not the annual Hebrew holy days; 4) the sleep of the dead and hope of resurrection at Christ's return, but not the doctrine of eternal torment. We are distinct, but not exclusive. We are affiliated with the International Ministerial Congress of the Church of God (Seventh Day) and are active in more than fifty countries around the world.

Unique Doctrines: We believe the observance of Lord's Supper commemorates the Lord's suffering and death on the cross for our atonement. The elements of bread and wine are symbolic of the body and blood of Christ that allow believers to remember and celebrate our salvation that was achieved through the ultimate sacrifice on the cross. Our mission is to preach and teach the gospel of Jesus Christ, to demonstrate the love of God by addressing spiritual, social, and economic needs of individuals within local and international communities, and to enhance the development of members through various forms of training.

Worldwide
Church of God
(Successor Movements)

Worldwide Church of God (Successor Movements)

The beginnings of the Worldwide Church of God can be traced back to 1934, when its founder, Herbert W. Armstrong, began a radio and publishing ministry in Eugene, Oregon. That small start in radio and publishing would lead to one of the largest media ministries in the religious world just thirty years later.

Armstrong was an advertiser by vocation and a compelling communicator in practice. His wife, Loma, had become convinced of the seventh-day Sabbath after a Bible study with a woman in the Church of God (Seventh Day). In an attempt to prove her wrong (1926), he instead became persuaded of the rightness of a Saturday Sabbath, associating with the Oregon Conference of the Church of God (Seventh Day) in 1931 and the national Church offices in Salem, West Virginia, in 1933. This association lasted several years until his ministerial role with the Church ended in 1938.

Setting out without affiliation to preach the kingdom of God as he understood it, Mr. Armstrong served scattered brethren and congregations in the Pacific Northwest. His network of radio stations expanded from the small beginning in Eugene, and in 1942 he began broadcasting on WHO, the 50,000-watt mega-station in Des Moines, Iowa. His Plain Truth paper, started in 1934 as a church bulletin, became a much more widespread periodical in the 1940s as well.

In 1946 Mr. Armstrong moved his headquarters from Eugene, Oregon, to Pasadena, California, and incorporated in that state under the name Radio Church of God. The next year, his Ambassador College opened its doors to four students, with the intent of preparing ministers for his growing work. The network of stations on which he was heard increased rapidly through the 1950s and 60s, and the church changed its name to Worldwide Church of God in 1967.

By then, Armstrong's son, Garner Ted, had become the church's most fluent and popular voice on The World Tomorrow radio and TV programs. These broadcasts, along with the Plain Truth magazine (circulation of a million-plus), made up a far-flung media empire that covered most of the English-speaking world and beyond. In the mid-twentieth century no church did more to raise awareness and acceptance of the Bible Sabbath among English-speaking peoples than the Worldwide Church of God.

The remarkable growth of the church slowed in the 1970s as internal issues took their toll. In 1978 Garner Ted Armstrong left the church and formed a smaller organization that continued his forte of broadcasting. After Herbert Armstrong died in 1986, new leadership began taking the Worldwide Church in other directions. This revolution gained enough momentum that, by 1995, the church had abandoned its firm commitment to the seventh-day Sabbath of Scripture and to several more of its earlier tenets. In 2009 the church changed its name to Grace Communion International, whose meeting times are mostly on Sunday.

Nonetheless, the teaching of the weekly seventh-day Sabbath and the annual festival Sabbaths has held firm in the hearts and minds of untold thousands of the church's members and sympathizers, some of whom made a fresh start for their faith in other Sabatarian churches. Most of these determined souls, however, found more common ground with their previous WWCG brethren and, through often painful twists and turns, have made their way into a myriad of newly formed churches and smaller fellowship groups. It is the latter churches and groups that we hope to represent and sample on the pages that follow.

The Sacred Names Movement

by Bryant Buck
and Calvin Burrell

Although many Sabbathkeepers make some use of the Hebrew names for the heavenly Father and His Son, sacred names adherents typically believe that those names should be used exclusively. They avoid using the words God or Lord to refer to the heavenly Father, and they avoid using Jesus or Christ to refer to His Son.

Sacred name believers refer to the Hebrew tetragrammaton (in English, the letters YHWH or YHVH) for the correct English spelling and pronunciation of the heavenly Father's name. The majority of sacred name adherents transliterate the third letter of the tetragrammaton as W. A minority transliterates it as V, and a few transliterate this letter as U.

Since sacred name adherents believe that the Son of God came in the literal name of His Father, they believe that the Yah in Yahweh must reappear in the name of His Son. In consequence, the two most common transliterations of the name of the Son by sacred name adherents are Yahshua and Yahoshua. A few transliterate the Son's name as Yahushua.

Sacred name believers stand for the literal observance of the Ten Commandments, including the seventh-day Sabbath. Although there is not perfect agreement among them on the strictness of Sabbath observance, they all agree that adherents should not work on the Sabbath — particularly not for monetary reimbursement. Most sacred name believers observe the biblical holy days enumerated in Leviticus 23 and the food laws of Leviticus 11.

Brief history

Bible students have always been aware of Hebrew names for the divine personages (Father and Son) of Scripture. The modern Sacred Names Movement in the English-speaking world, however, traces to the middle of the last century. Many pioneers of “holy names” teaching, as it may be called, came from the Church of God (Seventh Day) movement.

Clarence O. Dodd was instrumental in the Church of God (Seventh Day) in Salem, West Virginia. He resigned from that church and began Faith magazine in 1937. Someone from Michigan sent Dodd a clipping about the Savior's name, which he published as "filler." The article sparked much interest, and Dodd began using Ja-hoshua in the October 1938 Faith. The same issue contained an article by A. B. Traina, "What is His Son's Name?" in which he used Jehovah for the Father and Jah-oshuah for the Son.

Elder C. O. Dodd, early leader of Sacred Names movement

Faith was published in Salem, West Virginia, by Dodd's Faith Bible and Tract Society from 1937 until he died in 1955. The magazine continued from several locations until 1969, when it found a home in the Holt, Michigan Assemblies of Yahweh, representing small groups and individuals around the nation.

The early Sacred Names movement experienced waves of energy from various sources. A. B. Traina published the Holy Name Bible in 1963. Dr. John Briggs, Paul Penn, and William Bishop led evangelistic efforts using "the Names" in the Detroit area and beyond from around 1940 until the 1970s. L. D. Snow of Fort Smith, Arkansas, taught that Yahvah was the more correct form of the Name. He was influential in Texas, Oregon, and elsewhere during that era.

In the early 1960s, Jacob O. Meyer of Bethel, Pennsylvania, learned of Sacred Names doctrine and the lack of cohesion among its adherents. First assisting Elder Earl Boyd, who had published the Sacred Names Herald from Wilder, Idaho, since 1958, Meyer launched his own Sacred Names Broadcast radio program in 1965, the Sacred Names Broadcaster magazine in 1968, and the Assemblies of Yahweh, Inc. in 1969 as a vehicle to unify all the Sacred Names elements.

Meyer's efforts were influential among Sacred Names believers while he lived (he died in 2010), but they were not the only efforts. By the time of this writing (late 2014), it may be said that the movement continues to attract a variety of individuals and diverse groups who share the conviction of Sacred Names.

The Messianic Movement and the Sabbath

by Dr. Daniel Botkin

My spiritual identity is centered in Jesus (Yeshua), not in Sabbathkeeping. However, this does not lessen the importance of keeping Sabbath any more than it lessens the importance of any other of the Ten Commandments. Keeping the seventh-day Sabbath is very important to me and to others active in the Messianic movement. Some people call this movement by other names: the Jewish Roots movement, the Hebrew Roots movement, the Torah movement, the Messianic Israel movement, and perhaps other names. The term most commonly used is the Messianic movement.

The modern Messianic movement grew out of the Messianic Jewish movement, which in turn grew out of the Hebrew Christian movement of the 1800s. Hebrew Christians and Messianic Jews existed long before the 1800s, of course. The first century church started with Jewish believers in Jesus and for several years consisted only of Jews and proselytes whose conversion to Christ was through the door of Judaism.

In 1866 the Hebrew Christian Alliance was founded in Great Britain. Its constitution said, "Let us not sacrifice our identity. When we profess Christ, we do not cease to be Jews. . . . As Hebrew Christians, we desire to be allied more closely to one another" (Hugh Schonfield, The History of Jewish Christianity, p. 222).

The American Alliance of Hebrew Christians was formed in 1915 and the International Hebrew Christian Alliance ten years later. Jewish people began coming to faith in Jesus more than in previous centuries. Many Hebrew Christians died in the Holocaust. Their conversion to Christianity did not prevent them from being killed.

Many young people in America came to faith in Jesus in the 1960s. This was the beginning of the Messianic Jewish movement here. At first these Messianic Jews followed the pattern of the Hebrew Christians: They joined Sunday churches but identified as Jewish believers and evangelized their fellow Jews. But Messianic Jewish congregations started springing up in the 1970s as an alternative to so-called Gentile churches. And they met on the seventh-day Shabbat, not on Sunday.

As the Messianic Jewish movement grew, many non-Jewish Christians felt drawn to visit Messianic Jewish congregations, and eventually joined. These non-Jewish Christians could see that keeping Sabbath on the seventh day was a biblical practice, while keeping it on the first day (or no day) was not. So Messianic Jewish congregations now consist of not only Messianic Jews but also Messianic non-Jews.

Because Jews make up a very small percentage of the general population, some Messianic Jewish congregations have fewer Jews than non-Jews. In fact, some congregations have no Jews at all. When this is the case, some drop the word Jewish and simply call themselves Messianic. This is how the Messianic Jewish movement spawned a more inclusive movement that includes Jews and non-Jews.

There is still a Messianic Jewish movement, and there are still Messianic Jewish congregations. The biggest, best known, and longest-lasting Messianic Jewish organizations in America are the MJAA (Messianic Jewish Alliance of America, formerly the Hebrew Christian Alliance) and the UMJC (Union of Messianic Jewish Congregations). These focus on many concerns that are specifically Jewish, and desire to be a light to their fellow Jews. Non-Jewish Messianic organizations like the MCC (Messianic Covenant Community) and the MIA (Messianic Israel Alliance) have a broader focus and desire to reach all nations, including Jews.

For Messianic Jews and Messianic non-Jews, the Sabbath is an important part of Messianic life and worship. Unfortunately, many Messianic Jewish leaders believe and teach that the Sabbath is only for Jews and that Sabbathkeeping is optional for non-Jewish believers. Though it was not their intention, the Messianic Jewish movement also awakened many Christians to the importance of the seventh-day Sabbath.

The strictness of Sabbathkeeping in Messianic congregations varies. Often members are expected to abstain from work (especially income-producing), from buying or selling, and from kindling a fire. They are also expected to attend a holy convocation for worship. Occasional urgent difficulties arise when people have to make exception to the general rule. Some Messianic congregations are more lax about Sabbath requirements.

Worship services at Messianic congregations vary. Many Messianic Jews incorporate extra-biblical Jewish traditions and liturgy into their Sabbath observance, while most non-Jewish Messianics use little or no Jewish traditions and liturgy. Sabbath services may resemble those in Protestant churches, with lively music and singing, prayer and praise, and a sermonette followed by a longer teaching. They often conclude with a meal together.

At our local congregation, our women wear head coverings and long dresses, while our men wear fringes and do not shave. We recite the Shema and the v'ahavta (Deuteronomy 6:4, 5) in Hebrew and then in English. We end by reciting the Aaronic benediction (Numbers 6:24, 26) in Hebrew and then singing it in English. During the song service, several ladies form a circle at the back of the room and praise the Lord in dance.

There is no “one size fits all” method of conducting a Sabbath meeting. The purpose of the holy convocation is to worship the Lord and edify the members of the body. Sabbathkeepers have liberty when deciding things like the style and form of music, the format of preaching and teaching, the type of prayer and praise, the use or non-use of Hebrew, etc.

Leaders who make decisions about the Sabbath service should pray and trust the Lord to show them what will work best for their congregation. If our worship on the Sabbath is Bible-based, sincere, and heartfelt; if it glorifies God and edifies the brethren, then the Sabbath has fulfilled its purpose.

Dr. Daniel Botkin

Non-Aligned Sabbathkeeping Groups

by Bryant Buck

Non-Aligned Sabbathkeeping Groups

Non-aligned, or independent, Sabbathkeeping groups don't belong to a denomination or identify closely with any of the more familiar movements or Sabbatarian segments listed previously in this directory. Nearly all independent Sabbathkeepers believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and His revelation to humanity. They believe that the God of the Bible is the only true God, that Jesus Christ is His Son, and that God works by the Holy Spirit. However, the majority of them do not embrace the Trinity doctrine in the sense that most evangelical Christians do.

The vast majority of non-aligned Sabbathkeepers believe that people find God through active faith in Christ. Some call this experience being born again. Some call it being saved, and others avoid these terms while still advocating that true believers must have a living experience with Christ. Most independent Sabbathkeepers are firmly convinced that an experience of active faith in Christ results in a life of obedience to God — especially to the Ten Commandments.

We may describe some independent Sabbathkeepers as separatists and some as charismatics. On the separatist side, some groups purchase farms or rural properties on which to establish their faith communities apart from the world's influence, especially its cities. Many of these groups require strict standards of dress and personal conduct.

Sabbathkeeping charismatics, like their counterparts who do not observe Sabbath, believe that baptism in the Holy Spirit is a separate experience following the Spirit's initial work when they first trusted Christ. Most believe that the Spirit's baptism is accompanied by speaking in tongues or prophesying and that the nine gifts of the Spirit in 1 Corinthians 12 are active in the church today.

Not all non-aligned Sabbathkeepers fall under the categories of "separatist" or of "charismatic," however. Many small- or mid-sized congregations and house churches have chosen to remain somewhat apart from any of the six major segments or movements of Sabbathkeepers, while their faith and practice continue to be almost indistinguishable from one or more of those groups listed earlier in this directory.

Seventy Years of Bible Sabbath Association

1945 - 2015

by Calvin Burrell

Seventy Years of Bible Sabbath Association

The Bible Sabbath Association (BSA) has a seventy-year history of bringing God's people together across the lines of doctrinal and denominational differences that too often divide them.

The founders of BSA, George A. Main and his wife, Mabel D. Main, were members of the Seventh Day Baptist Church. The first BSA office was in their home in Pomona Park, Florida, for at least ten years (1945-1955).

The longest-serving editor of BSA's The Sabbath Sentinel magazine was Eugene Lincoln, a Seventh-day Adventist Church member who served the BSA from his homes in Indiana, Michigan, and Maryland. His quarter century as BSA editor was from 1960 to 1985, and he served two terms as BSA president (1988-95).

The longest tenure for any BSA secretary-treasurer was a Church of God (Seventh Day) couple: Lawrence and Lottie Burrell. They served from their farm home near Fairview, Oklahoma, the national BSA office address from 1955 until 1995. The BSA service of the Mains, Lincoln, and Burrells was mostly or all voluntary — a true labor of love.

More recently, servant leadership in the BSA has been provided by several persons who came from a Worldwide Church of God background and experience. These include Richard Wiedenheft, Ken Westby, Richard and Shirley Nickels, and others.

In addition to the four Sabbatarian organizations represented in paragraphs above, BSA membership and leadership has been valued and exercised by persons from the Sacred Names movement, from the Hebrew roots movement (a.k.a. Messianic Judaism), from other organized groups of Sabbathkeepers, and by some Sabbathkeepers without any such affiliation. Seven Sabbath-honoring segments of the larger Christian community are recognized in separate articles elsewhere in this directory.

Three commonalities have allowed and encouraged BSA collaboration among peoples of diverse faith: 1) belief in the Bible as God's Word; 2) belief in Jesus Christ (Yahshua Messiah) as the Savior and Master of men; and 3) belief in the weekly seventh day (Saturday) as the Lord's Day and true Sabbath of Scripture.

As an early issue of The Sabbath Sentinel magazine put it, the BSA's primary goal has always been "Sabbath promotion and defense . . . laying special stress on the purpose to make and maintain the Association wholly undenominational and non-sectarian."

What strategies has the BSA employed over the years to achieve this goal and purpose? Perhaps the most recognizable tool of our association in seventy years is The Sabbath Sentinel (TSS) magazine. Beginning publication in 1950, TSS celebrated its five-hundredth issue in the spring of 2003 and has added another seventy-plus issues since then. For many years, it has been sent without subscription charge to all BSA members and to any others who request it.

Second only to TSS magazine in familiarity among BSA ministries is the Directory of Sabbath-Observing Groups, which has been published every few years since 1955. The tenth edition was issued in 2010, and the book you now read is the eleventh edition. The number of Sabbathkeeping people and non Sabbath-observers who've gained helpful information, and found precious fellowship within the varied Sabbatarian faith community through the pages of our directories, is known only to God.

Shirley Nickels has announced her retirement from the BSA National office in mid-2015. In honoring Shirley for her twenty years of service to the Bible Sabbath Association, we also honor all those who preceded her in this position.

Other services and projects of the Bible Sabbath Association over the years include the production and distribution of a variety of Sabbath literature, books, cassette tapes, CDs, and DVDs, as well as wall calendars with Sabbaths in red (or another contrasting color). We've sponsored an Echoes from Eden radio ministry with Elder Frank Walker, the field work of a BSA executive secretary (Richard Wiedenheft), and youth essay contests on the importance of the Sabbath. We've helped to foster public seminars called Friends of the Sabbath and other local fellowship activities. We maintain a BSA website and Facebook discussion boards.

We thank God for those who have been BSA members and frontline soldiers in the effort to defend and promote seventh-day Sabbath observance for seventy years. A partial list of BSA presidents and TSS editors appears below. On behalf of the countless people who have been blessed by one or more BSA ministries, we say thanks to those of you who willingly continue to shoulder this gospel responsibility and Sabbath outreach that has meant so much to so many.

Editors of The Sabbath Sentinel since 1950: George Main, Eugene Lincoln, Richard Wiedenheft, Sydney and Sherry Cleveland, Lars G. Harrison, Royce E. Mitchell Jr., and Ken Ryland.

Sabbathkeeper's Pledge

As a follower of Jesus Christ . . .

- I pledge to give my first love and loyalty to the true God who reveals Himself best in Jesus. As Savior of men and Lord of the Sabbath, Christ does for me what no one else and no day of the week can do.
- I pledge to be clear about salvation's source by confessing that my sins are forgiven and eternal life is promised me only by the grace of God through faith in Christ — not because I am a Sabbathkeeper.
- I pledge to admit and agree that God's people may be in many religious organizations or in none of them. No longer will I judge people's faith based on the church group they do or don't belong to.
- I pledge to emphasize that the seventh-day Sabbath is more than a law to be obeyed; it is also a unique gift of God to be enjoyed and celebrated with great benefit by all who receive it in faith.
- I pledge to remember that the primary need of people is to know God's love and grace in the gospel, and that their need to know and observe His Sabbath is secondary to their need for Christ.
- I pledge to recognize Sabbathkeeping Christians as a valued and respected family within God's household of faith, and to use what opportunities I have to encourage and support this diverse family.
- I pledge to love my neighbors, my fellow Christians, and my fellow Sabbathkeepers as myself, according to the second great commandment of the Lord.

70th Anniversary

I feel honored to express appreciation for the Bible Sabbath Association (BSA), now celebrating its biblical age of seventy. Its founding purpose was not to compete with churches but to simply provide information about the variety of Sabbathkeeping Christians, to support Sabbath and its commonality. The BSA has produced the helpful Directory of Sabbath-Observing Groups. I find it instructive to realize that there are other significant Sabbath-observing denominations.

I wish to pay tribute also to The Sabbath Sentinel and its editors, some serving for many years. A warm “thank you” to those who have given time and talent to these worthy endeavors.

— Bert B. Beach

Retired SDA executive and educator (and lifetime BSA member)

My warm regards to the BSA and its inter-denominational Sabbath promotion. I like working with an organization that focuses on glorifying our God and Savior to spread His Word of truth, including the neglected Creation Sabbath. Weekly observance of God's holy rest day could greatly improve our lives, our world.

— Leroy C. Bass

Retired Seventh Day Baptist pastor (and former BSA president)

I grew up attending Church of God (Seventh Day). Then, I thought there were only two or three Sabbath churches in the world. Now hundreds of churches and fellowships, large and small, observe God's commandments — including the Sabbath. All who are led by the Holy Spirit make up the body of Jesus Christ — His true church. It is comforting that our Lord knows His own! Thanks to the dedicated work of a few, this directory can be a valuable reference guide in your library.

— C. Wayne Cole

Former Worldwide Church of God evangelist, now an elder-at-large in the body of Jesus Christ
