

Mimeographed evangelistic campaign fliers announce meetings and subjects to be delivered. In an age without television, these meetings were a major source of reaching new hearers.